+24 points

Check your State Pension

Not confirmed, so the plan counts €0. A full one could lift cover from 5% to about 29%.

+19 points

Start a pension

€987 a month (about €592 after tax relief) could lift cover to 24%.

WHAT COULD CHANGE THE ANSWER

Paying more into a pension helps most

WHAT IF YOU...		COVERED	GAP STARTS AT
ONE CHANGE AT A TIME
Today's plan Retire at 50, no State Pension counted		5%	52
Retire at 60 Ten years later		11%	63
Save €850 more a month In cash and investments. About 18% of take-home pay		11%	55
Retire at 65 Fifteen years later		16%	68
Start a pension, €987 a month About €592 after tax relief. The most you can claim on at 27		24%	51
Count your State Pension Full rate, €15,564 a year from 66		29%	52
Pay €850 more a month into a pension After tax relief. About 18% of take-home pay		33%	52
COMBINED
Retire at 60 + pension at the limit With a full State Pension (confirm yours)		70%	65
...and pay €425 more a month into a pension Total 22% of take-home pay		87%	70
Or retire at 65 + pension at the limit With a full State Pension. Total 13% of take-home pay		94%	79

A path to explore

Retire at 65, start a pension and check your State Pension record: about 94% covered, with a gap only from age 79. Retiring at 60 instead reaches 70%.

Results from the plan engine on your plan; all rows except the State Pension and combined rows assume no State Pension. A full State Pension is not confirmed. Pension money is locked until 60, so retiring before then rests on savings alone. An expert can confirm every figure.

Questions to ask

Is retiring at 50 realistic? If not, what age gets me closest to €40,000 a year?

How much should I pay into a pension each month, and where?

How do I cover 50 to 60 while pension money is locked?

What income protection do I need, and what does it cost?
